

Sara Shumaker

Sara Shumaker—when not tending her young son, the gardens, and a wild flock of hens—writes short stories and creative non-fiction, because she absolutely cannot stop herself from doing so. She formerly taught for the English, Writing, and Honors departments at the University of Central Arkansas and was managing editor for The Journal of Caribbean Literatures. One of her recent stories is published in UNLV's journal Word River.